Foreword—

The Junior Class of Kalamazoo College presents the 1922 BOILING POT for the world's approval. It is not with the confidence of previous accomplishments that this is done, for the realization that this book is the work of amateurs invites an uncertainty into the minds of the publishers.

The purpose of this book is to portray Kalamazoo College as it really is, and through this portrayal inspire the lives of all those with whom it may come in contact.

While this book is open to the criticism of all those who will give it kindly, this request is made,—if it is worthy of favorable comment, please relieve the publishers of their doubt by telling them; if it is unworthy please give your suggestions for improvement to the class of 1924 that they may profit thereby.

HONORS AWARDED CLASS OF 1922

The Class of '22 can justly feel proud of the honors that have already been conferred on its members. If these honors, conferred even before the class is graduated, are any indication of the future, surely we can look forward to some preeminent accomplishments by this year's class.

MISS GENEVIEVE BUCK has been one of the few students of this country to be granted a French Student Scholarship, and will spend the coming year in graduate work in France.

MARION GRAYBIEL has been granted a scholarship for one year's graduate work in the English Department of Yale University. This is the first Scholarship ever granted by that University to a Kalamazoo College graduate.

CORLISS TAZELAAR, HARRY BELL, and STANLEY GLASS have received scholarships to Harvard University where they will do graduate work next year. Tazelaar and Bell will work in the Physics Department, while Glass will continue his study in Chemistry.

JOHN FORNEY has accepted an assistant-ship at Clark University where he will work with Dr. Kraus in the research laboratory.

WARREN JOHNSON and RALPH SEWARD have been granted scholarships at Clark University, where they will work in the Science Department.

The BOILING POT extends its congratulations to these people for the honors that they have received. Their achievements stand out not only as an honor to themselves, but as an indication of the calibre of the Kalamazoo College Faculty, and as a fitting monument to the high academic standards maintained by this institution.

THE PINES

(WINNING FIRST PRIZE IN THE "BOILING POT" POETRY CONTEST)

In the city dooryard stands a pine,
An exile from the back lands,
A stranger on friendless, hopeless soil.
Its lower limbs sawed off,
Its wounds smeared with cheap red paint,
Its soul like its bark, blackened with the city's smoke and grime.
On winter nights its branches snap and crackle at the same moon
And stars, that shine upon its wild brothers.
In the heart of the storm it cries aloud
To be borne away—away—with the rushing wind and rain.
In the light it is again dirty grey, gummy, shadeless.
A jewel in an ash heap and yet—a jewel.
A king unthroned and yet—a king.

On the barrens they are in countless hosts,
The jack pines, dwarfs of their race,
Struggling for life, failing in the struggle.
Leaves browning in the summer's haze as the heat waves rise
From burning sands beneath the needled carpet.
Unseen save by wanderers of the barrens,
Unknown and unheeded,
Yet living on exhausted—shrunken—fearing.

Through the low country stretches the swamp
Reaching its green arms up valleys, creeks and rivers.
The dark, dark green of the pines,
The moving, swaying, responsive city.
The untrailed city of Fearsome Things,
Whose people nod, whisper and sigh
To the life treading the soft yielding moss beneath.
Their malformed arms sweeping the ground,
Laughing to themselves in the dim light,
Beckoning, slowly silently destroying.

On the crest of a hill near a swift flashing stream
Towers a land-mark—a giant pine.
For untold years has it stood there—alone.
Ah the things that have passed since it was young!
It has heard the wild geese go honking north,
Heard the wolf pack cry on a hill,
Watched the tribes follow the trail to the fur country,
Seen the black-robed fathers from Michilimackinac,
(As their canoes ran the river to the south),
Saw the railroad come and the lumberman,
Heard its brethren fall crashing around it,
And still remains, the very last of its kindred.
Majestic, aloof, domineering it lives,
Its plumes in the sky—scorning the changing earth below.

FANTASY

(WINNING SECOND PRIZE IN THE "BOILING POT" POETRY CONTEST)

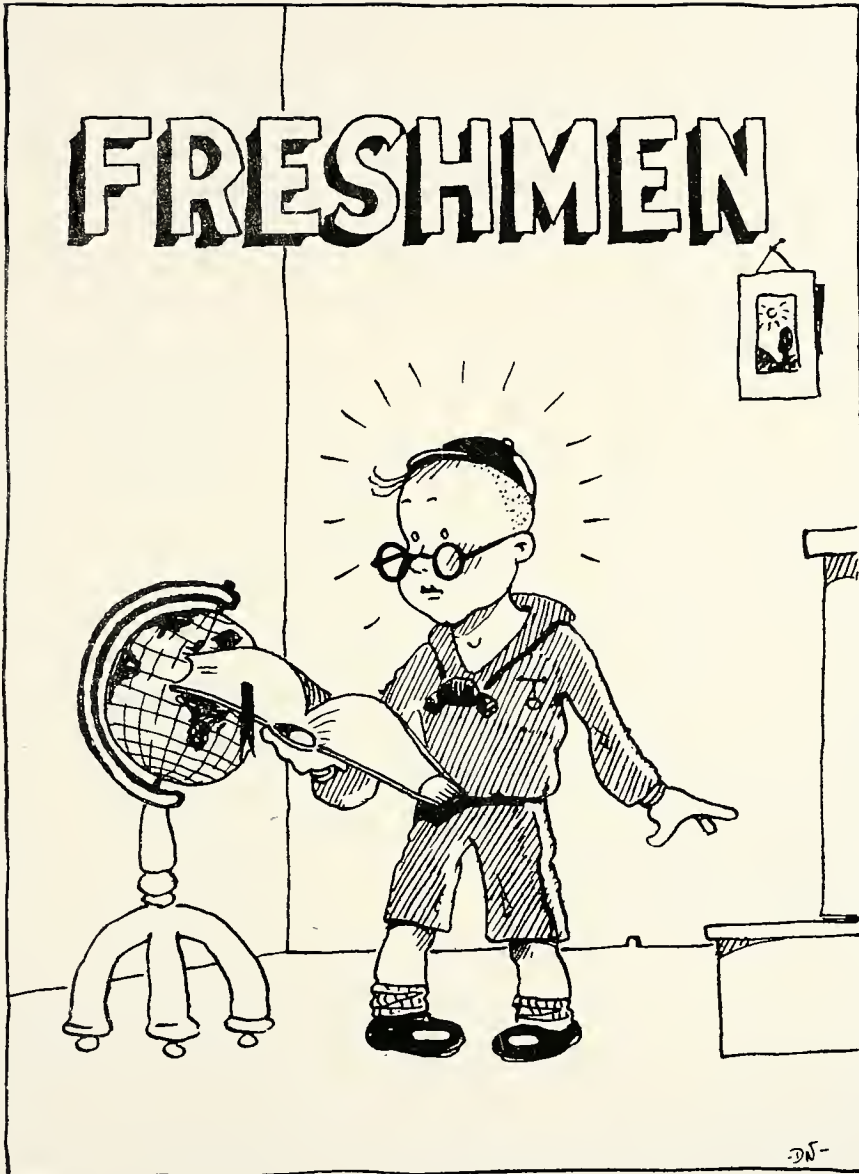

'Twas night. I thought I strayed in fields afar:
Strange lands, unlike my native desolate shore
Where men scoff at the talking with a star,—
A languid land, where I loved nature more.
Occasionally I heard the swish of oar
As floating on the mellow, misty stream
Ambition stirred the impulse to explore
Beneath the scattered stars that gaily gleam,
Reflected with their sparkle, so supreme.

And moonbeams spin their webs of silver light;
And such a lovely, dazzling sight appears
Upon the gliding surface, that the night
Is cleared of past regrets and future fears.
The mist of sorrow fades and disappears.
I saw fair isles, where no isles used to bide,
Where smiles of joy supplant men's woeful tears.
"Why this must be Elysium," I cried.
I looked about for heroes who had died.

The islands melt; and swiftly in their place
A thread of variegated light draws nigh.
A bright particular star falls through the space;
I recognize a bright and shining eye.
I see the maiden whom I glorify,—
I kiss her lips, caress her brow; and she Yields and responds, and seeks naught to deny.
Ah, Love! never to wish or want for thee!
How grand to dream like this eternally.

SUNSHINE

(Winner of the Eurodelphian Short Story Contest)

The old Chickering in the corner of the sunny room was fairly bursting with pride. From its rosewood case under coaxing fingers, it was pouring forth as never before a melody which sang of the warm sunshine, chattering birds, fragrant flowers, and babbling springs: everything which symbolizes happiness. There was something unusual about the whole situation—something which the song itself seemed to proclaim. The slender, delicate maid whose hands were flying over the yellowing keyboard had in her posture the same joyful note as that of the music. About her eyes which must have been beautiful for her entire appearance forbade any other supposition, was a thick white bandage which, strangely enough, appeared not at all annoying to the wearer.

Perhaps it was this about the girl—her unconscious poise in spite of the cumbersome bandage and her surprising musical ability apparently so spontaneous—together with the incongruity of the presence of a Chickering in a room so bare as this that made the situation so unusual.

Neither the girl nor the piano seemed at home here though unquestionably the presence of the girl had brought increasing cheer to what would otherwise have been the gloomiest of places. In a rocker by the window was a pile of curtain material—an indication of feminine industry—and over the bed, the only other article of furniture the room boasted save a rough table and a cheap picture, was thrown a worn couch cover as if in an attempt to make the room more livable. Through the half open door into an adjoining room could be seen such furnishings as would indicate that this combined the kitchen and dining room of the establishment as well as the sleeping quarters of another member of the household.

The same gentle breeze that stirred the heap of cheesecloth in the chair was bringing the sound of urchins' voices to Crystal as she played. She smiled as she heard them. Their compliments were so extravagant.

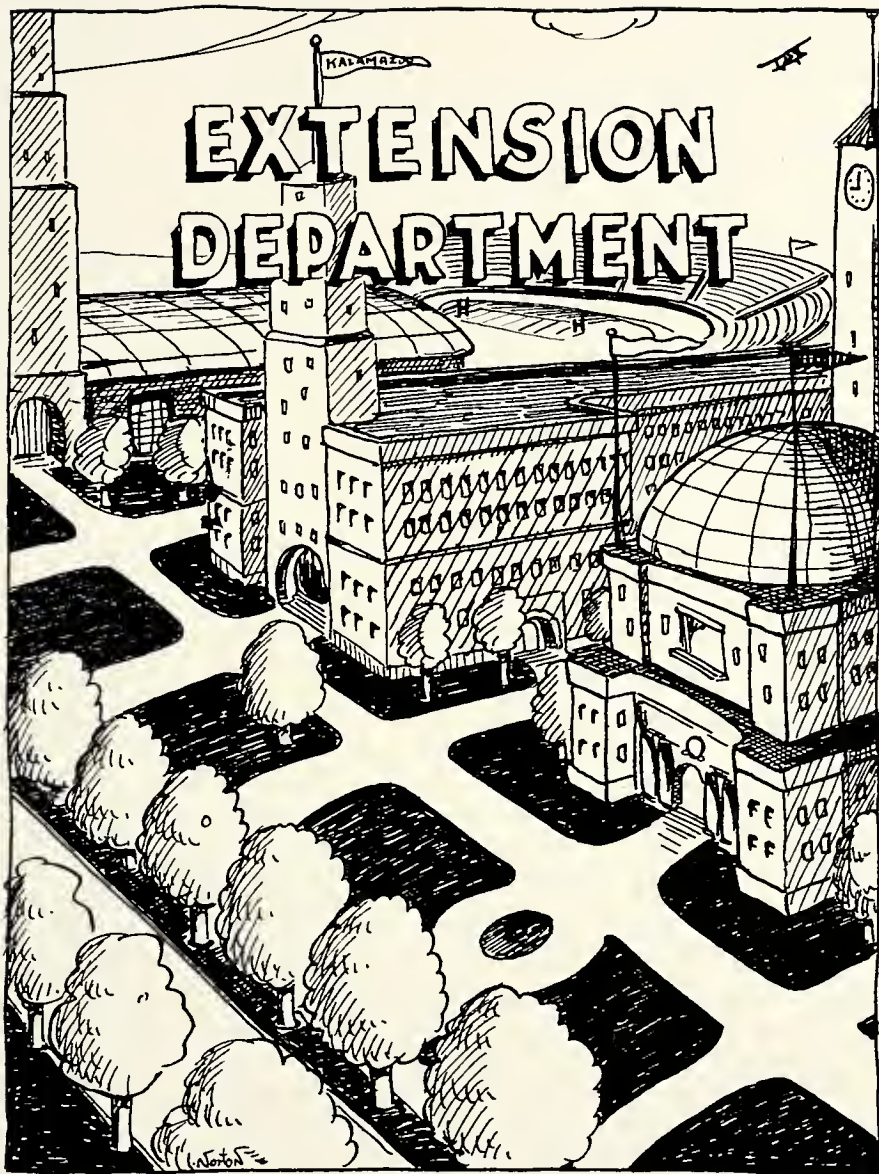

Little Andy, the poor bandy-legged newsboy who not infrequently inhabited the barrel in the court below, little Andy who had the soul of a musician was saying—"Gee, ain't it lovely? Did ye ever hear anythin' so grand? And her blind too—yer'd think she never had nothin' ter feel bad erbout—now wouldn't yer?"

And his shrill-voiced playmate was commanding, "Git out of my way thar Andy,—I'm dancin'—can't yer see nohow? Lord, yer'd think yer was in Heaven the way yer gawpin' up at her window. She ain't goin' ter peek out at yer—she's playin'. Should think yu'd wanter dance too—but merciful heavens, yer would look comic. It'd almost make that Sunshine girl up thar glad she can't see if you'd try it. But 'taint yer fault and I don't want to hurt yer feelin's. Why don't yer sing—yer kin sing anyway, Andy."

But Andy was still gazing up at the window oblivious of his playmate's chatter when Crystal finished her playing and smiled down upon them.

It was a dingy paved court surrounded by tenement houses from the dingiest of which the girl with the bandaged eyes was leaning. A cheery word from her

EXTENSION DEPARTMENT

PROGRAM—At its annual meeting in June, 1921, the Board of Trustees adopted a program of expansion totalling a budget of nearly two million dollars. The program calls for increased endowment, the purchase of more land, and the erection of several buildings. The Trustees do not expect the entire program to be taken care of immediately but they count it wise to plan for the future and they do believe the entire program will be realized within the next several years.

ENDOWMENT—The General Board of Education has agreed to give the College $200,000 for additional endowment provided the College adds $400,000 to its endowment by 1924. It is expected that as a result of the New World Movement Campaign which has been held, the College will be able to meet the requirement. Because the prospect of our meeting the requirement is so favorable, the Board is already paying interest on the sum of money it proposes to give.

LAND—Since adopting the program of expansion, the Trustees have purchased the Stockbridge property for a building site. This has three hundred and sixty-six feet frontage on Main Street and four hundred feet on Carmel Street. Temporarily the Stockbridge House is being used as a Women's Dormitory.

The so-called Colman property has also been purchased. This faces Academy Street, extends from Buckley Street to Monroe Street and is twelve rods deep.

The land program contemplates the purchase of other lots and of an adequate athletic field.

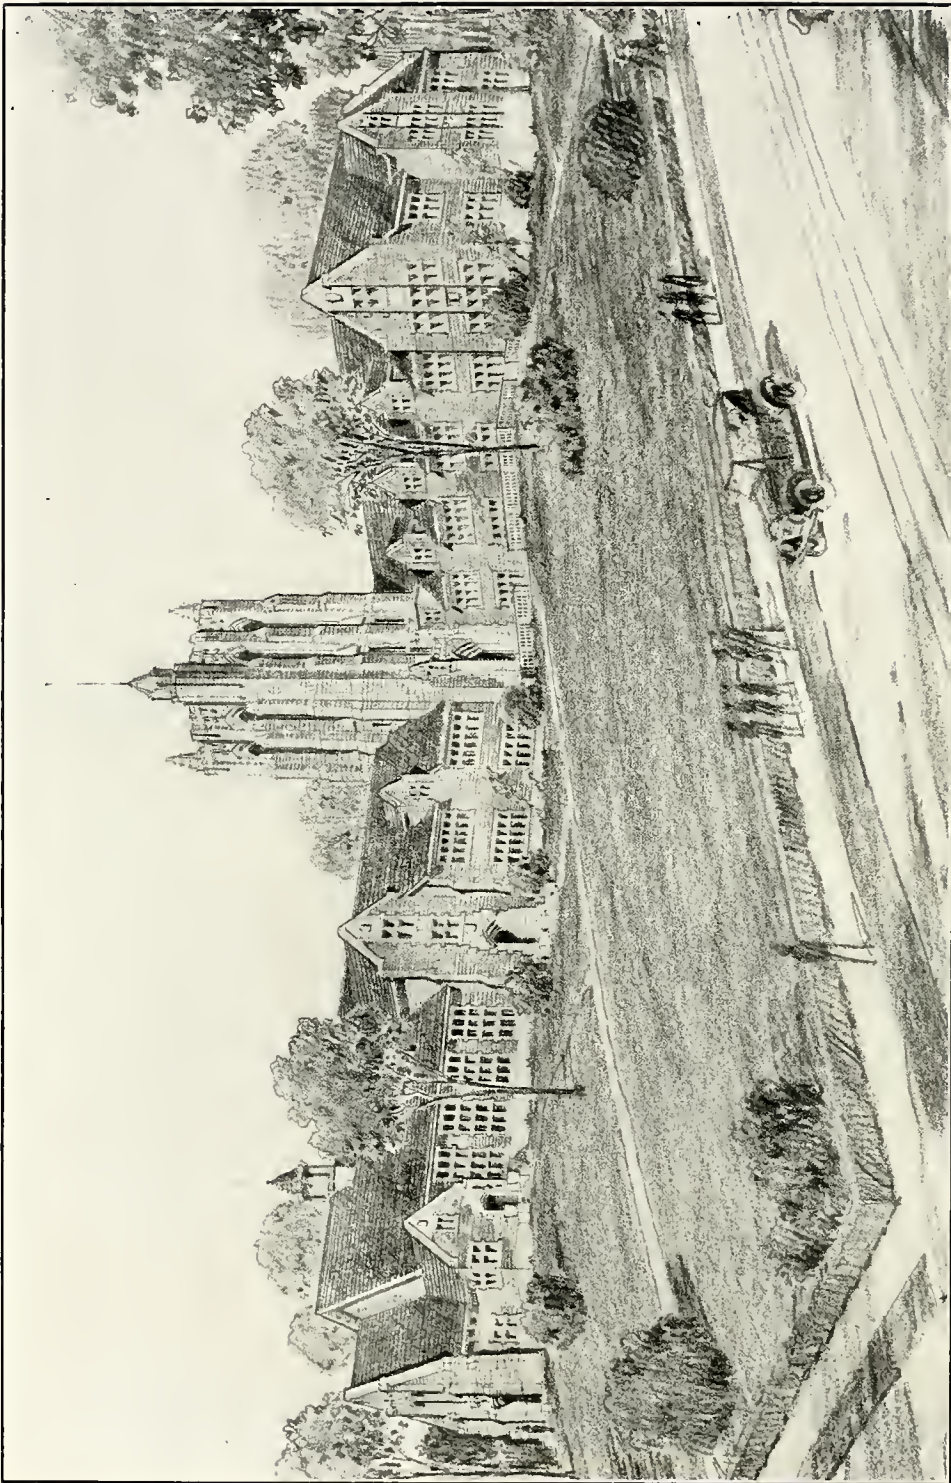

BUILDINGS—Mr. Albert Kahn of Detroit, the Supervising Architect for the great building plan of the University of Michigan has been secured as our architect, and several of his drawings of proposed buildings are presented on the following pages.

The Women's organization of the Michigan Baptist Convention is in the midst of a campaign to raise $150,000 for a new dormitory for women. Miss Florence E. Grant of Birmingham is the efficient chairman of the State Committee, with Mrs. R. E. Olds of Lansing and Mrs. Floyd Olmstead of Kalamazoo assisting on the committee. The earnest work and loyal response of the women throughout the State is indicative of victory. Already many thousands of dollars have been subscribed and the successful culmination of the campaign is assured.

At the annual meeting of the Alumni and Ex-students held in June, 1921, they voted to put on a campaign among themselves to secure $200,000 for the erection of a general recitation building to be known as "Stetson Hall" in honor of our beloved President Stetson. This campaign will probably be inaugurated during the ensuing year.

Groups of business, professional and club men of the city of Kalamazoo have assured us that as soon as business recovers from the financial depression, a campaign can be put on in the city with the assurance that the citizens will provide the funds for one of the buildings in our program.

Certain individuals of large means have shown a marked interest in the far reaching plans of the College and it is not too much to hope that with the development of the program some of these will make extraordinary gifts.

COACH RALPH HAYWARD YOUNG

COACH RALPH H. YOUNG is unquestionably one of the best collegiate athletic directors in the country. Kalamazoo College has in Coach Young a truly remarkable man who is both an excellent coach and a real man. The college is justly proud of him.

He began his athletic career in a preparatory school, then went to the University of Chicago where he learned football for two years under Coach Stagg. One year he was on the freshman team, the next on the 'varsity. Both seasons he played fullback.

For three years he was a member of the Washington and Jefferson 'varsity where he played at guard and fullback. This training was under Coach Folwell who is now handling the Navy team. In those three years the team lost but two games. One was to Harvard, nine to ten; the other was to Cornell, three to nothing. The last two years, 1913 and 1914, the W. and J. team ranked as one of the two best teams in the east.

While Coach Young was in the service he was sent to the University of Michigan where he played at tackle on the first team. While there he was under Fielding Yost. In all, Coach Young has played in more than forty college games against practically all the good teams of the east and west. He knows both line and backfield play, and both eastern and western methods. He has received coaching from three of the best coaches in the country.

In the few years he has been at Kalamazoo College Coach Young's teams have won fourteen major sport titles in the M. I. A. A., in addition to two field day baseball titles, three relay championships, and tied for one baseball championship.

Coach Young is a man who has the respect of everyone who knows him. He is fair to all, gives credit where it belongs, and stands for what is highest in athletics. He is exceedingly modest over his accomplishments.

In addition to handling all four major sports and making them winners, he does his own managing. Most schools have assistant coaches and the great majority have separate managers but Coach Young handles the entire work himself.

He is a pastmaster in the art of handling men. He works hard himself, setting an example for his players to follow. He knows human nature, which enables him to do just the right thing at the right time. In his talks to the players he knows exactly what to say to get the men to do their best work.

One of his best qualities is his keen foresight. He is a close student of athletics throughout the country. He is constantly on the lookout for facts and material that will aid him in turning out better teams. He is a field general who is prepared for anything that may turn up. His training men to play three positions on the football field is an example of this. He trains a reserve squad so well each season that there is no serious loss from graduation.

As a basis for all his work he has what might be called his system. In all his coaching he gets down to bed-rock fundamentals. He is extremely thorough, always building from the bottom up to the finished team. His training covers everything in the training line. He is scientific in every respect; he follows only where facts lead. He has more information on his teams than most men have on their businesses. What is more—he uses his information. An example of this is in his football work in which he keeps accurate data on every play of the season. He carefully analyses his plays and the results they obtain and keeps only the uniformly successful ones. When his teams lose he knows why they lose and works until he remedies the fault.

Above all Coach Young is a real man. He stands for only those things which are cleanest and highest in life. Through his sterling character he is a true inspiration to the men working with him.

THE past twelve months, from April 1, 1921 to April 1, 1922 has been the most successful athletic year in the entire history of Kalamazoo College. Kalamazoo teams have always been high class but during the past year they attained greater heights than ever before.

The school now holds a world's record in consecutively winning championships in its own class. As far as is known there is no other college or university in the country which has ever won its own conference title in all five sports in a single year. Most colleges are content to win in one sport; a very few win in two. Yet Kalamazoo has not lost a championship in the past year.

The unusualness of this attainment is realized only when one learns how few championships the majority of colleges win in a year. In 1915 the University of Illinois won Western Intercollegiate conference titles in the four major sports. Of its winnings the U. of I. states, "This record was without parallel in intercollegiate athletics, and may never be duplicated. It would be out of reason to expect to maintain such a record."

But in addition to winning its conference title in these four major sports, Kalamazoo has won the tennis championship, the relay championship, and the Field Day title. Beginning with baseball, track and tennis last year, and finishing with football and basketball this season Kalamazoo College has swept everything before it.

FOOTBALL is king of athletic sports in Kalamazoo College! The gridiron game leads the field in Orange and Black athletics and is a sport worthy of its place of prominence in the school's athletics.

Compared with a great many successful seasons, that of 1921 is the most highly successful which the institution has ever had. Coach Young scheduled games with nine of the highest class teams which he could secure, and his men won seven of these games. Throughout the season the chief aim was to win the M. I. A. A. title and at the end of the football year Kalamazoo had won the conference supremacy. This attainment alone would stamp the season a success but in addition the Orange and Black defeated high-ranking teams of Indiana and Illinois.

Kalamazoo scored 234 points to opponent's 98, and 85 of the opponent's scores were made by two universities, Notre Dame and Indiana. The two other teams which scored on Kalamazoo made their one touchdown after Coach Young had substituted reserve men. In five games, the opponents were permitted no scores whatever.

The Detroit News had not exaggerated facts, when it states, "In its class Kalamazoo College is probably without a peer in the country. It is a team that is a credit to football, one deserving of all the praise it will ever get."

Miles Casteel, playing at quarterback, was the outstanding man of the season. He was high-score man with eighty-five points, was placed on six All-M. I. A. A. elevens, won the Hornbeck trophy for the best defensive player, and is considered the best pilot that any Kalamazoo College team ever had. He can do everything extraordinarily well that any football player can do, and in addition is a natural-born quarterback.

Kalamazoo undoubtedly had more real stars on the squad last season than ever before as forty-three men represented the school in games. Next to Casteel, Spurgeon heads the list. He is a fine open field runner, one of the best receivers of forward passes in the M. I. A. A., an excellent punter, knows how to interfere, and can take interference. He is a fine student of the game and has football instinct.

Captain Malcolmson led the team in word, deed, and action. He has finished his fourth year on the team, is an All-M. I. A. A. man and a fast elusive end of outstanding ability. Kreuz is noted as being the team "buster." It was he who was put into the Albion game when the ball was on the Methodist's fifteen yard line, and who battered his way in three plays to their four yard line. He was the mask which allowed Casteel to score the winning touchdown. Captain-elect Fred Doyle is another star. He weighs 197, is a powerful player, a vicious tackler, active, speedy and uses his hands well on the defense. Doyle was awarded the Schensul medal for showing the best spirit throughout the season. He should prove to be an ideal leader next year.

"VIC"

"FREDDIE"

"MIKE"

Harold Taylor, for the second time, was the speed merchant of the varsity. He is a wonder at open field running, hits the line well, and is a fine defensive back. Vroeg, also a halfback, gained ground consistently for Kalamazoo. He gained repeated yards against the heavy Notre Dame and Indiana teams. He is elusive, quick, tackles hard, and is a fine all-around man. Mehring playing at either guard or center, is probably the best man on the team for sensing which way the opponent plays are going. He has a real football head and knows how to use it.

Clay, a four year veteran and an All-M. I. A. A. man, is a tower of strength on both offense and defense. He weighs 194, and consequently is a mainstay on the line. Jacobs, at the guard position, is a fighter who handles himself unusually well. He not only holds his ground at guard but does considerable tackling.

In addition to these men, Lambke, VanFossen, Morley, MacKay, Harder, Voorhies and Knight did a great deal of work on the 'varsity and exhibited high class playing throughout the season. Coleman, VanZoeren, Fleming, Goodwin and Pappin, all splendid football material, were kept from regular berths on the 'varsity because of the extraordinary calibre of the first team.

The most spectacular and important game of the season was the battle with Albion for the M. I. A. A. supremacy. After the two elevens had fought without scoring for three quarters Kalamazoo started an eighty-yard march down the field for the winning touchdown. Six consecutive first downs were made which swept the Methodists off their feet. With but a few moments of playing time remaining Kazoo out-generated Albion by sending a play around left end for the only touchdown of the game.

The four year "K" men are Captain Malcolmson and Clay. Three year men, Casteel, Doyle, Mehring, and Lambke. Two year men, Coleman, Taylor, Harder, VanFossen. One year men, Vroeg., Van Zoeren, Voorhees, Jacobs, Fleming, Knight, Kreuz, Goodwin, Spurgeon, Pappin.

The "R" men are Burlingham, Kern, Hamill, Stewart, Ansley, Peterson, Vanderberg, Thomson, Fifield, Chappell, Mundwiler. Service sweaters were awarded to Evans and Smith.

THE greatest basketball team that ever represented Kalamazoo College! This is the distinction awarded the 1922 team which proved itself champions of the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association, undisputed winners of the state collegiate title, and winners of second honors in the national intercollegiate tournament.

In the twenty-five games of the season Kalamazoo won twenty-two, piling up 855 points to opponents' 489. The losses to Val-paraiso and Hope were later made up by Kazoo's defeating both teams.

For the ninth time in as many years the Orange and Black team finished at the top of the M. I. A. A., setting a world's record which has never been equaled in the history of sport.

The high spots of the year, in addition to winning the M. I. A. A., were the two defeats given to Notre Dame. Eliminating M. A. C. as a contender in the state race; defeating the University of Detroit twice; defeating the University of Idaho, champions of the entire Pacific coast, and Grove City College, champions of the east; thus earning second title in the national intercollegiate race.

To use Coach Young's analysis of the team, Kalamazoo had the three essentials of basketball, much speed, great ability, and vast endurance. Kalamazoo had five stars in every game who used fine teamwork. Rapid fire passing was one of the basis on which plays were built. The men went into every game with the idea that baskets would count for the team and not for the man who touched the ball last. They also knew that when the opposing team secured the ball all five Kazoo men would automatically change to guards. The Orange and Black excelled in real guarding. Lastly, the success of a real team depends upon its ability to deliver in the pinches and Kalamazoo delivered.

Captain Tom Vroegindeweij won the honor of being called the best floor guard in the intercollegiate tournament. For three years he has been placed on all-M. I. A. A. teams. Because of his splendid work during the past season he was awarded the Schensul trophy. In addition, he was given the unique honor of being re-elected to serve as captain of the squad next year. No other Kalamazoo captain has ever served two years in succession. For the past three years he has been an outstanding man on Kalamazoo's teams. He is a stellar halfback on the football 'varsity, a speedy tennis man, as well as being one of the best basketball men in the school's history. He is worthy of every honor which may be given him.

MacKay has played four years for Kalamazoo and each year he has led in the scoring both for the school and for the M. I. A. A. He has been unanimous choice as all-M. I. A. A. right forward each year. He has a fine basket eye, marvelous floor play, unlimited fight and dazzling speed.

"VROEG"

"MAC"

"SPURG"

"BUD"

Spurgeon, playing his first year for Kalamazoo, was selected on all five all-M. I. A. A. teams at the center position. He was an important factor in every game Kazoo played. He will be even better next season. Lambke, rated as the best back guard in the state for the past several years, has served three seasons for Kazoo. Few close-up shots were made against him and he never failed to control the ball as it came off the bank.

Hinga made more points from the field than any other Orange and Black man, totaling seventy-five field baskets. He is a three year veteran, has an abundance of speed and ability, and handles himself unusually well. It was he who put Kalamazoo out in front in the Notre Dame, M. A. C., Hope, and U. of D. games. Kern has played in practically every game in the last two years. He has great speed, is aggressive, has endurance, and is capable of making shots when the points count for most. He captured sixty-two field goals last season. Petschulat and Mundwiler, the two other 'varsity men, did excellent work in every game in which they played. Both men should do great work next season.

"PHEDE"

The "K" men for the season are Captain Vroeg., MacKay, Lambke, Hinga, Kern, Spurgeon, Petschulat, Mundwiler. The "R" men are Hall, Grant, Betzner, Smith and Bowser. M. I. A. A. standings are Kalamazoo, Ypsilanti, Hillsdale, Alma, Adrain, Olivet.

One does not need to take what only local press dispatches say about Kalamazoo's winning teams. Those that follow are representative of what sport critics in other cities thought of the Orange and Black team.

South Bend Tribune, Jan. 12—"Shortly after the second period began the lighter Kazoo court men set a pace which Notre Dame could not match, and the game gradually assumed the complexion of a Kalamazoo victory. MacKay was the real star of the game. The pass work of the visitors in the second period was cleverly executed, and Vroeg., Hinga, and MacKay worked a fast triple pass down the floor that ended in a free throw before the local guards could cover the tricky floor men."

Lansing State Journal, Jan. 23—"Kalamazoo College administered the most decisive defeat suffered by the Michigan Aggie court squad this season. Stronger than either Wisconsin or Michigan, the two previous victors over the Aggies, Kalamazoo proved itself one of the greatest basketball teams in this part of the country by the manner in which it weakened the Farmer combination."

"KERN"

Detroit News, Feb. 15—"The strength of the team from the Celery City was of such a nature as to establish it as an attacking force the equal, if not the superior, of any quintet seen in Detroit in years."

Ft. Wayne News-Sentinel, Feb. 26—Kalamazoo College, running wide open most of the way, piled up the biggest count that any five has amassed against Concordia in two seasons. The invaders were plainly the class of any five that have come here ”

Indianapolis News, March 10—“The Michigan boys lost no time in pocketing a lead. They zipped the ball back and forth as they whirled down the floor and the Idaho team was just not fast enough to catch them. Kalamazoo's defense, too, was good, but it was their flashy passing that wrote the word class all over them.”

Indianapolis Star, March 11—“Kalamazoo displayed dazzling speed in its triumph over Grove City. . . . but always at critical moments Kazoo broke through for necessary points.”

Indianapolis Star, March 12—“Vroeg, was the finest floor guard in the tourney. He raced tirelessly about the floor and at all times was the central figure in Kalamazoo's attempt to slash through Wabash's defense.”

Detroit News, March 26—“The 1921-1922 Kalamazoo College basketball team will go down in history as the greatest that has ever represented the Kazooks. Exclusive of winning the M. I. A. A. court titles, Kalamazoo twice defeated Notre Dame, eliminated M. A. C. as a contender in the state race, defeated U. of D. twice, and was runner-up in the national intercollegiate tournament at Indianapolis.”

HE best baseball season in the history of the school," is the way Coach Young characterizes the 1921 season. The five games lost out of the fifteen played were anyone's games. It was simply a case of Kazoo's not getting the hits when the hits meant runs.

The eighteen men on the squad were all high-calibre players who could play the game in an exceptional manner. Kalamazoo had the makings of an excellent team because the infield could be shifted around when necessary. Each man could play several positions with great ability.

In the Notre Dame game the university team didn't put over its winning run until the last of the ninth inning. Captain Fenner allowed but four hits, and struck out Notre Dame men eleven times.

Kalamazoo lost to the University of Michigan, two to nothing. The Orange and Black out-hit Michigan and Fenner out-pitched his opponent but Kazoo's support cracked at the critical moments. Coach Young's men split with Ypsilanti and Valparaiso, and won two from Albion and lost one.

Kazoo's four pitchers, Fenner, Lambke, Harder, and Strong were the best the college has had. 194 men faced Fenner in his five games, only eleven scored runs. Lambke permitted but 26 runs from 244 batsmen, Harder let in nine runs out of 68 batsmen, and Strong 19 out of 71.

Captain-elect George Walkotten led the scoring for Kalamazoo, with Chapman, Bracket and Staake next in order. Walkotten and Staake were the heaviest hitters, with Lenox, Petschulat, Chapman, Bracket, Lambke and Hinga next in line. Staake and Walkotten hit over four hundred, and Harder, Lennox and Petschulat hit over the three hundred mark.

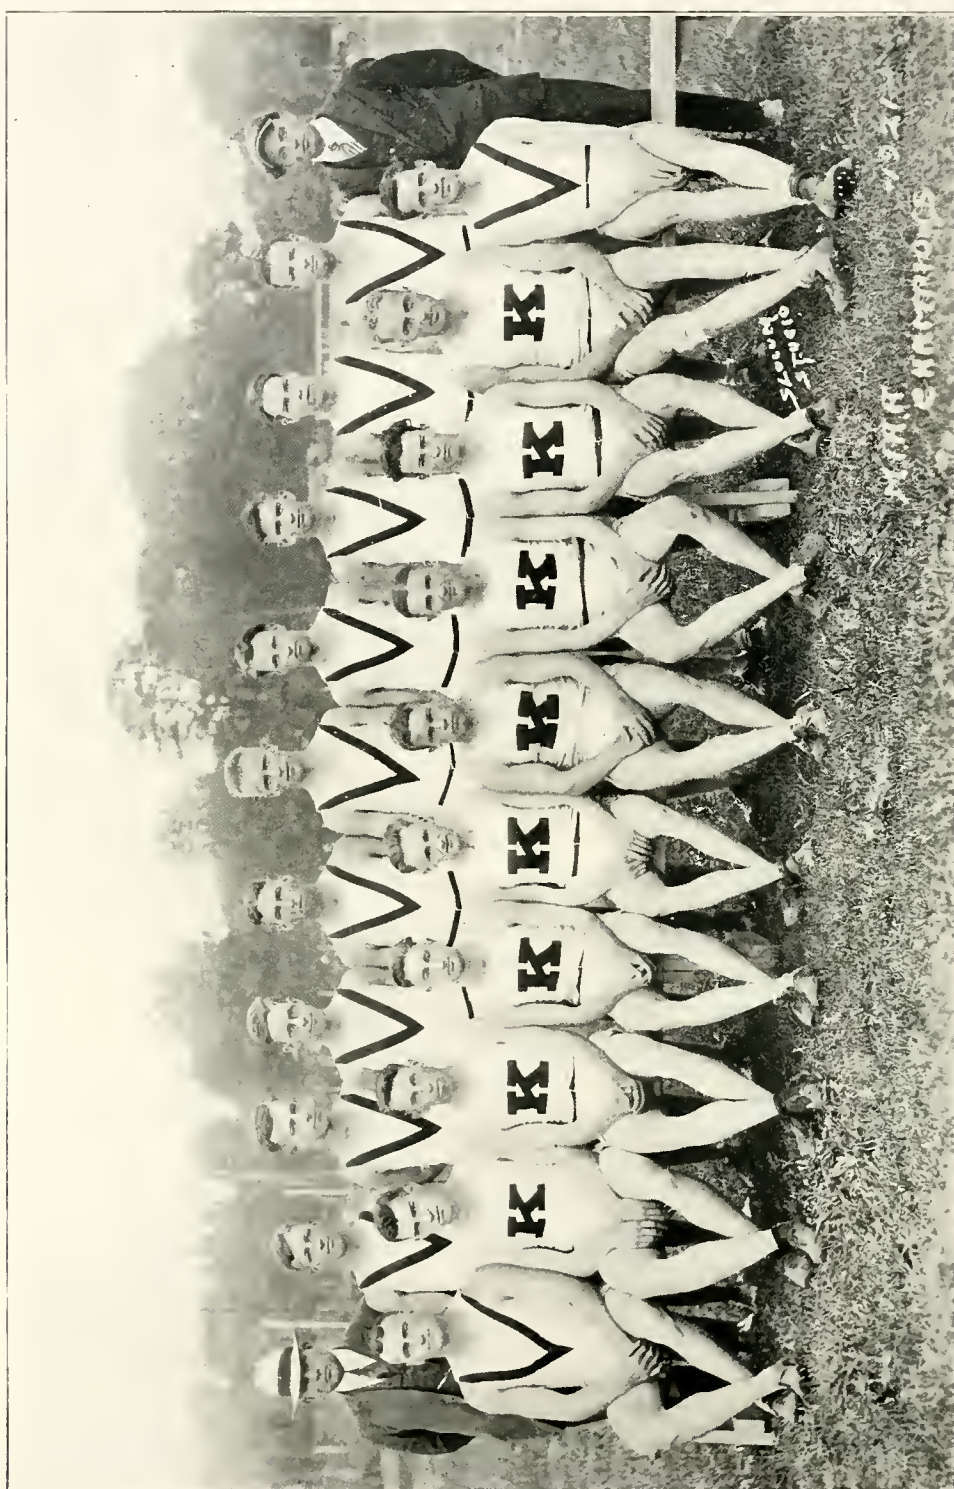

Baseball "K's" were presented to Captain Fenner, Petschulat, Walkotten, Chapman, Bracket, Staake, Lambke, Lennox, Hinga, DesRoches, Harder, McDonald, Strong, Casteel, and Andrews. The "R" was awarded to Coughlin, W. Schrier, and Bunnell.

SETTING eight new Kalamazoo College records, winning three dual meets, earning second place in the state intercollegiate meet, and winning first in the M. I. A. A. is the high standard set by the 1921 track team.

Kalamazoo defeated Ypsilanti by the score of 115 to 15. Ypsi gained but one first and scored in only seven events. Kazoo piled up fourteen firsts, twelve seconds and seven thirds. Detroit Junior went down in a hard fought meet by only three points, 67 to 64. In this meet the relay was the deciding factor. Then Albion came to Kazoo but lost 100 to 30. Coach Young's men won thirteen out of fifteen firsts and shut out Albion altogether in five events. In all three dual meets Kalamazoo won first, second, and third in the mile and two mile, and both first and second in the quarter and half.

In both the state meet at M. A. C. and the M. I. A. A. contests at Albion the Orange and Black came through with flying colors. At Albion, Kazoo piled up more points than all the other schools combined.

On May seventh the sixth annual Kalamazoo College interscholastic meet was held with over two hundred high school athletes taking part. Seven records were broken and one was equaled. Highland Park of Detroit won first, Grand Rapids Central was second, with Kalamazoo Central third. The meet was the most successful ever staged by the college.

During the season eight Kalamazoo College records were broken. Petschulat set a new record for the 220 yard dash by stepping the distance in 22:1. Ray Forman lowered the college mile record at the National intercollegiate meet to 4:28:2. Harold Wilcox set the two mile record at 9:57:3. Ralph Clay made a new shot put record, 38.73 feet. William Praeger threw the discus 133 feet four inches at the National meet. Glen Thompson made a new broad jump record, 21 feet 7½ inches. Don Hamill threw the javelin 153 feet for a new record.

The most sensational record of the season was made when Petschulat, Coleman, Monroe Wilcox and Forman broke a relay record that has stood for twenty-one years. The 1921 team lowered the time to 3:32:3.

Harold Wilcox was elected captain of the 1922 team and has the material behind him to turn out another winning team.

THE year 1921 proved to be one of Kalamazoo's most successful tennis years. The Orange and Black court team won the second annual intercollegiate tournament held on Kalamazoo's courts, won the dual meet with M. A. C., triumphed in the M. I. A. A. tournament, but lost to Oberlin in a dual meet, and came out second in the Michigan Aggie tournament.

Kalamazoo won the invitational meet here by piling up 140 points, leading the nearest competitor by thirty points. Albion was awarded second place, Central Normal third, Hope and Alma were tied for fourth place, M. A. C. earned fifth place, with Western Normal sixth.

Captain Emil Pinel and Leland Hall represented Kalamazoo in the men's tourney. Mary Cutting and Grace Petertyl played in the women's contests. Pinel and Hall worked through to first place in the doubles without losing a game. Both men went through to the finals in the singles but didn't play out the match.

In the women's singles and doubles Miss Cutting and Miss Petertyl put up a brilliant fight but finally lost to Albion. Kazoo's points in the men's contest enabled her to win the cup for another year. If the trophy is won by the Orange and Black this season it will be the school's permanent cup.

Kalamazoo won all four divisions of the dual meet at M. A. C. Pinel, Wright, and Hall won their singles, but DesAutels lost. Pinel and Wright won their matches in the doubles, as did Hall and DesAutels. The girls won singles and doubles.

In the dual meet held in Kalamazoo with Oberlin college, Kazoo won the men's doubles but both Pinel and Hall lost their singles, which gave the meet to Oberlin.

After defeating M. A. C. twice earlier in the season Kazoo lost to the Aggies in the tournament at East Lansing. Emil Pinel won the singles, but he and Wright were put out in the second round of the doubles by M. A. C.

Kalamazoo piled up enough points in the M. I. A. A. Field Day tournament at Albion to win the banner. Captain Pinel won the men's singles, and Pinel and Hall won the doubles championship. The girls lost in the preliminary round to Albion. Later the Methodist girls lost to Ypsilanti.

By his fast and consistent work throughout the season Emil Pinel won the right to be called the best college player in the state. Leland Hall is captain of the 1922 team. He has lots of speed, ability and endurance and has shown himself well worthy of the honor.

Coach Thompson and Captain Hall have a 1922 tennis squad which ought to do big things on the court. Candidates for positions on the men's team are Vroeg., Voorhees, Armstrong, Hinga, Alenduff, Graybiel and Siebert. The women's teams will be picked from Dorothy Putt, Leta Hamilton, Gertrude Greene, Marguerite Hall, Gene Black, and Heloise Tuttle.

NO. 22

ORANGE AND BLACK QUINTET WINS FROM NOTRE DAME SPEEDSTERS 25-13

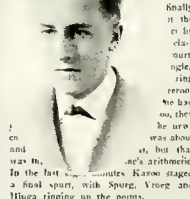

COACH YOUNG'S FAST BASKETEERS ARE TOO MUCH FOR VISITORS

AT NO. 1000 BRING ENTIRE SULT

Coach Young's fast basketeers were too much for the visitors from Notre Dame. The Orange and Black quintet won from the Notre Dame speedsters 25-13. The game was played at the Kalamazoo Armory on Friday night.

In the second period the Howard's attempted a... and immediately dropped...

Coach Young did not have to use a single substitution in the whole game. The fact that he kept the same line-up throughout the game is a tribute to the skill of his players.

Summary: Kalamazoo 25, Notre Dame 13.

Referee: Old, Ypsilanti.

INDOOR TRACK TEAM WILL GO TO M. A. C.

Samuel's night show a baker's dozen of Kalamazoo's finest track athletes will enter into competition at the annual M. A. C. indoor track carnival at East Lansing, Mich. Young expects to enter two men.

In every event except the pole vault, in which Castel alone will compete against the pole men from other Michigan colleges.

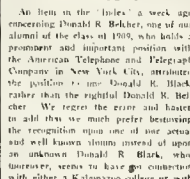

It is not known definitely which men will enter which events, but it may be guaranteed that the best possible effort will be made.

FRESHMEN KAPPA'S GIVE DEMONSTRATION

When says the Freshmen are at the last Kappa meeting another demonstration of versatility.

During the evening, and after introductory remarks, Elsie Evans, a student of the college, gave a talk on the value of the Kappa program.

After a brief business meeting the session was adjourned in order that each girl might go back to her waiting books and study, as is customary after every Kappa meeting.

Don't Forget Kappa Kalendar.

SHERWOODS INSTALL NEW OFFICERS

Inaugural and exaugural speeches occupied most of the Sherwood meeting last week. The unusual warmth of Sherwood Hall occasioned some comment among the members who had been absent at the previous meeting.

Wilbert Bennett, retiring president, spoke briefly of how much he had appreciated the honor that had been his in leading the Sherwoods through the past semester, and handed over, with the applause of the members present, the office to the elected president, Clinton Perry.

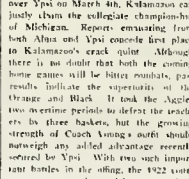

After the supper the hospitable young ladies of the church volunteered to escort the gospel team, individually, to the basketball game.

Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. C. A. in Kalamazoo College is the one organization on the campus which gives every girl an opportunity to be brought into active touch with every other girl in the institution. On every Tuesday afternoon the weekly program under the leadership of students or visiting speakers is held and from these meetings the girls go away with a clearer understanding of what is needed to fill their social and religious needs.

The social life of the "Y" is, also, worthy of consideration. The annual Hare and Hound, the "Y" party for new girls, is one of the jolliest affairs of the year, and the sister-college banquet given every spring to raise funds for a girls' school in Gingling, China, is the big co-ed event each year.

Every summer girls are sent to the Geneva conferences and the inspiration they gain there is brought back and shared with the girls who are unable to go. In this way, and through our field representative, the girls are advised upon the work carried on by the other associations and the college organization is kept wide-awake and active.

The local Student Volunteer group was organized in 1886, a year after the movement was inaugurated in 1885.

This organization has been very active this year, having increased its membership from twelve to twenty-two, as well as having carried on successfully various activities. In addition to doing deputation work among the churches of Kalamazoo, the Student Volunteer Group has furnished two Mission teams one of men and one of women, to be sent out by the Extension Dep't throughout various churches in the State to have charge of Sunday services.

Within the Group, regular weekly devotional meetings have been held, one open meeting was given in the fall, and a few social get-togethers have been introduced.

As a small part of the great National Student Volunteer Movement, the local organization is trying to do its part in making effective the slogan of the Movement: "The Evangelization of the World in This Generation."

Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. situation in Kalamazoo College is rather unique. For a number of years past, due to so many other religious organizations and to a thriving "Y" in the city, our organization has not been the living, vital force it should be.

At the beginning of this school year under the able leadership of Tom Vroeg, the "Y" put on a big reception to the incoming students. This was a decided success.

It was deemed advisable by the active members of the "Y" under the existing conditions, to throw all energy into the Gospel team work. Consequently with the aid of Professor Severn and Dr. Bachelor, the president of the Y. M. C. A., organized two Gospel teams of five men each. These teams have gone out to the small churches of the state and held religious services. Our plan was three-fold: first, to instill new life and inspiration into the hearts and minds of the Christian people in the towns; second, to tell them of a Christian college where they might send their sons and daughters with every assurance of their receiving the best religious training possible; third, to give practice and experience to the college men in public speaking.

Now what of the future? Will it be Gospel team work next year? Or shall we strive for a revival of weekly meetings. At present we have thrown our forces with those of the Y. W. C. A. in order to make the College prayer meeting a success.

Let us all get together for a bigger, better, more enduring Y. M. C. A. in 1923. Let us all hope and pray for a greater spirit of religious enthusiasm among the men of old Kazoo.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

The Kalamazoo College International Relations club has had a most active existence since its inception early in the school year. This group, which constitutes a new and important campus organization, is a direct result of the wider and deeper interest taken everywhere by college people in world affairs.

The International Relations club, which is but one of many similarly organized throughout the colleges of the country for the same purpose, was directly instigated by the visit to Kalamazoo college of Dr. A. B. Hall, professor of political economy at the University of Wisconsin. Dr. Hall addressed the student body on "Economical Imperialism and America's Foreign Policy," a topic that did much to awaken interest in America's world position. It was soon after this that a faculty committee of seven, Dr. Balch, Professors Foth, Bailey, and Hovey, Dr. Degeler, Dean Powell, and Dr. Thompson, was organized to consider the formation of a club that should study international relations. Within a short time the announcement was given that the first meeting of the newly formed International Relations club would be held on December 16.

An unusually well-qualified speaker was fortunately secured as the attraction for the first meeting, Dr. A. J. Barnouw of the Institute for International Education. Prof. Barnouw, at present in America on an exchange fellowship as holder of the Queen Wilhemina chair of Dutch history at Columbia university, is a professor in the university of Leyden, the Netherlands. The short speech that Dr. Barnouw gave in chapel was but a small indication of the illuminating discussion he gave at the open meeting on "Holland's International Relations."

Another highly interesting lecture was given during February under the auspices of the International Relations club when Professor Arthur I. Andrews of Tufts college gave before the student body an illustrated talk on Czecho-Slovakia and its people. Professor Andrews had special qualifications for such a discussion, having been during 1920-21 a lecturer at the University of Prague.

In addition, however, to talks by visiting speakers, a series of carefully presented and well organized papers have been read before the club at each meeting in conformance to a program laid down at its original organization. This year's program has been devoted to the study of Far Eastern affairs. Two meetings were taken up with papers on Japan's history and politics. Then China was similarly considered. The Russo-Japanese was also a topic for discussion, with the year's schedule closing by papers that took up Japan's advance to world empire, and its peculiar relation to the Far Eastern problem.

The personnel of the club is as follows:

K CLUB

The K Club is an organization of the athletes of the College who have been awarded the varsity K. The purpose of the club is to promote co-operation and enthusiasm in the progress of athletics and to encourage an interest in it among the alumni and high school students.

For many years before the war the Club was one of the most active and influential organizations of the College. During the war, due to the fact that so many of the men were in the service, its activity waned. Since that time its influence has been greatly needed. Consequently at the beginning of the second semester of the year 1921-22 the Club was reorganized, a new constitution drafted, and officers elected.

The K Club has its place to fill and its duties to perform on the campus. A great interest has been manifested in the organization and with such support it should be reestablished on the plane which it has previously enjoyed.

HELEN WARD

The past year has marked a banner season in forensics as well as in other activities. Under the excellent coaching of Professor Brees, Kalamazoo representatives have won honors in both oratory and debate that have been unequaled in the history of the college.

Miss Helen Ward, who made her platform debut this year, won first place in the women's contest of the State Oratorical League, with her oration, "Our Social Dependencies." Mr. William Schrier, with his oration, "Our Next Step" won third place in the men's contest of the State Oratorical League, and fifth place in the National Pi Kappa Delta Oratorical Contest—a contest made up of representatives of sixteen of the leading forensic colleges of the nation. To say the least, Kalamazoo is fortunate to have representatives of this calibre, and we are all justly proud of the record they have made.

In debate as well as in oratory, our representatives made an unparalleled record. The varsity team won six out of eight debates, and both contests lost were by 2-1 decisions.

The negative team was composed of Ray Siebert, Captain, Elmer Littell and Vern Bunnell. Wm. Schrier, captain, and Ben Manley were the main stays of the affirmative team. Kenneth Sausaman acted as their team-mate in the Ypsilanti and Hope contests, Stanley Knapp was third man at Olivet, while Harvard Coleman did his bit in opposing the arguments of the Colby Crew. Ray Siebert and Wm. Schrier, Captain, made up the affirmative team that defeated the strong Hedding College two-man team.

The Varsity record is as follows:

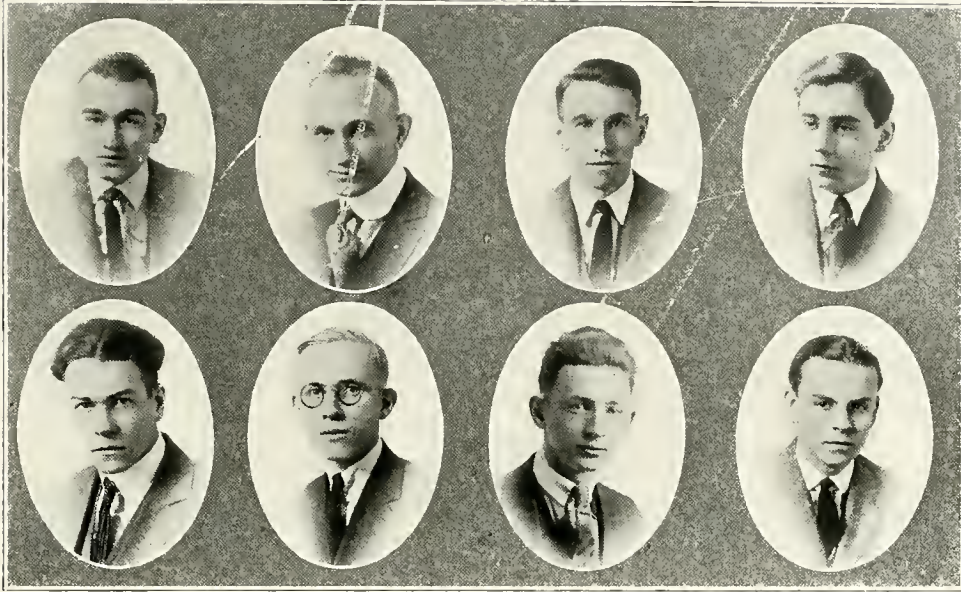

Kalamazoo (Aff) ...	2	M. S. N. C.	1
Kalamazoo (Neg) ...	1	M. S. N. C.	2
Kalamazoo (Aff) ...	2	Olivet College	1
Kalamazoo (Neg) ...	3	Hillsdale College	0
Kalamazoo (Aff) ...	3	Hope College	0
Kalamazoo (Neg) ...	3	Hope College	0
Kalamazoo (Aff) ...	1	Colby College	2
Kalamazoo (Aff) ...	2	Hedding College	1
TOTAL		17	7

The girls debate teams, gave an excellent account of themselves in their dual encounter with the co-eds of our old rival, Albion. The affirmative team, made up of Vera Hill, captain, Verna Smith, and Beatrice Waber, defeated the Albion crew by a 2-1 decision, while the affirmative crew made up of Captain Leta Hamilton, Julia Barber, and Zelma Simpson, lost by the same score in a hard fought battle. There being but one girls' debate, it was impossible for all the girls to take part, but so good was the work of Millicent Shernerhorn, Marguerite Hall, and Gene Black, that Professor Brees admits that he had a hard time choosing between them and their colleagues. We are expecting to hear of great results from these young ladies in forensic circles next year.

WILLIAM SCHRIER

MEN'S VARSITY DEBATE TEAM

SIEBERT, KNAPP, COLEMAN, BUNNELL
MANLEY, SAUSAMAN, SCHRIER, LITTELL

The freshman class is justly proud of its representatives on the platform contests. The all-fresh affirmative team composed of Captain Raymond Ford, Ben Goldman, and Gordon LeCronier lost to Hillsdale in a hard fought contest by a 2-1 decision, while the negative composed of Captain Harold Knight, Lewis Grant, and James Stanley, defeated the Albion first year men by the same score, 2-1. Altho Harold Beadle and John Shea did not get a chance to prove their worth in these contests, their work for the whole season was most highly commendable, and all eight of these men will be worthy contenders for berths on the varsity squad of next year.

The debates this year were all on the Closed Shop issue, and every case presented by Kalamazoo teams showed much preparation and clear reasoning. Summing up the entire season in debate, Kalamazoo teams won eight out of a possible twelve encounters, and received 23 decisions from judges to 13 received by their opponents. No Kalamazoo team was defeated by a unanimous decision during the past season.

PI KAPPA DELTA

The Pi Kappa Delta is a national forensic fraternity, open only to those who have taken part in an intercollegiate forensic contest. Kalamazoo College has the Alpha Chapter of this state, and through the direction and encouragement of Professor Foth it has done a great deal to create and maintain interest in forensics. Its scope of work, however, is not limited to Kalamazoo College. Last year the local chapter enjoyed the distinction of bringing more outside colleges into the national organization than were brought in by any other chapter. The degrees of membership are based on the individual record of each member.

brought the hovering tears to the little bandy-legs' eyes and the small dancer who at heart idolized Crystal though she professed indifference in the presence of Andy whom she regarded as weakly worshipful, now with beautiful inconsistency shoved Andy a bit to one side to get a better look at Crystal herself.

But Andy had something to say—"O Miss Sunshine, it's just like Madison Park and the trees and the birds and the flowers—just like that fairyland where the coachman let me in once. How can you do it—you that ain't never seen all them things?"

"Aw shucks," interrupted the follower of Pavlowa, "she wasn't playin' about all them things. That was just something like what the orchestras play to make you stand on your toes and twirl like that," suiting the action to the words, "weren't you?"—for corroboration.

"Yes and no," answered the musician. "Birds and trees and flowers for you Andy. I can play them because I feel them, you know. But for you, my little dancer—it was just a dance piece I was playing."

Though a bit puzzled at this explanation the small girl, too proud to show ignorance where Andy seemed to understand, now joined her companion in begging the sunshine lady to play some more.

As she turned, the sensitive fingers of the blind girl brushed against the orderly array of threaded needles on the sill. "Dear old daddy," she thought, "How he hates to thread them but he gave me good measure today since he knows how eager I am to finish my curtains before the bandage comes off this afternoon. He is so happy because the great doctor says I shall see—and I too know I shall, for already things are not all black as before. Even through the bandage I almost see the light."

She was thinking hard to herself as she sat down again at the piano. She could hear the children calling for her to play—and at the memory of their childish pity of her she began to wonder if it had been so hard after all.

She had always been sensitive to her surroundings—and she had not needed little Andy's remark that there had never before been a piano in the neighborhood excepting Ike Costello's street piano, to sense the unfitness of a Chickering here. Sometimes the place had so depressed her she could scarcely keep back the tears. But then the realization of her father's need of her had cheered her, and the warm sunshine—the one bright thing which found its way into their rooms—had comforted her. It was her father who had saved her mother's Chickering for her—it was he who was now spending every cent he could collect for the treatments which were to restore her sight. And after all, it had been hardest for him.

Somehow Crystal felt just a little to blame for the condition of things. Not that it was her fault—but was it not because of her that her father had gone to pieces? Shortly after her mother's death the depressed father had suffered almost a mortal blow when a careless nurse who tended baby Crystal—she shuddered at the thought—for it was then that the light in the dark eyes had gone out presumably forever. Then it was the spirit seemed to go out of the father. Down and down sank his position with his firm and after Crystal had gone to the blind school he had finally lost his work entirely. But he had clung the Chickering for had he not one day come home to his baby girl and found her on her knees on the stool before it—playing something really pretty and lisping as she turned to him—"Mama?"

All this Crystal knew so well it flashed through her mind on the instant. But she was helping him. She knew that. He was back with his old firm making good now and he called her his inspiration. Carl, her violinist friend on the floor below, called her that too and she was happy for she had been able to do all this when the world was still dark to her.

But with this gladness that almost made her heart burst there mingled an elusive sadness too. Would she mean so much to those about her when the light should return, she wondered. Oh yes, she would no longer be a burden perhaps—but would her heart be sensitive and responsive as it was now—when she no longer felt the need of it to interpret the things with which she came in contact? How could she learn to use those long-darkened eyes? What about the eyes of her soul (that was it—she liked that expression ‘the eyes of her soul’) would she still be able to use them? If she wouldn’t life would somehow be lonely and different. And yet she wanted to see the sunshine—the sunshine that had so often cheered her—if only to know better why her father called her sunshine.

She began the strains of a composition she and Carl loved—a composition in keeping with her mood. She had forgotten the light-footed ragamuffin beneath her window but she was playing something that reached the soul of little Andy.

Suddenly her form straightened and she turned her head slightly. Not a sound was audible save to her sensitive ear, but a moment later a door opened and closed below; a footstep fell on the stair and the rich notes of a violin obligato floated up to the room. The girl played on. The violinist came nearer, up the stairs and into the room where he finished the selection at her side.

The girl swung around and turned her bandaged eyes to the man—“Carl,” she said, “I have a great surprise for you. I am so happy. Off comes my bandage this afternoon,—presto! I see you and father and the sunshine and everything. But supposing after all, it should still be dark!” and her face clouded.

“Crystal, you little bit of sunshine yourself. What need have you to see the sunlight? It will still warm you anyway. But the good God will reward your long patience and you will surely see,” the plain face of the violinist was all tenderness.

“Oh, but I don’t deserve it one bit,” she protested. “But please, brother musician, what is it you are waiting to tell me? I feel it in the air, this restlessness of your soul to tell me something. Is it that you have written a new sonata we may play together? Tell me now quickly before I die of curiosity,” and she laughed merrily.

“No, dear Crystal, it is more than that. It is what I have refused to tell you for a long time for I haven’t been sure of the outcome. It’s this. I have been trying to win a place in the big symphony orchestra. They heard me last night—and now I am to be the solo violinist, more than I had dared to hope, and it is all due to you—my little inspiration.”

At the word the girl’s face shadowed a little but her voice was breathless. “Oh, that is wonderful—glorious! And I helped you, I really did? I did that when I am blind? But that is not all you have to say—I know there is more—I feel it. What is it?”

“Ah, Crystal, only this—that I love you and I want you to marry me.” At the dazed expression on the girl’s face he added—“But I have waited to tell you until I could be sure of our future. And now that you will soon have your sight I cannot take your answer until you have looked at me and decided whether you can really love me. For I am so very plain, little one, that you with your love of beauty as you feel it, might never be satisfied with one who could not give you beauty to look upon. I am afraid to have you answer, until you have seen me.”

"Does father know? Yes? But" and the bewildered girl interrupted herself,—"if I can't promise until I can see you, just suppose it stays dark, that I never see the sunlight?"

Carl caught her hand in his own. "Why Crystal, then I shall love you perhaps all the more for we shall be sunlight each for the other as you are now mine. Would that be so disastrous? But what are you doing?"

Crystal's fingers were busy with the fastening of the bandage. Before he could recover from his surprise he found himself looking into her eyes—but they were somehow different from the old unseeing ones. Surely there was dawning, if bewildered vision in them. And she was looking at him as if he were actually handsome. "But you are beautiful," she was saying. "How could it be otherwise? Everything I love will be beautiful to me. The eyes of my soul—I am using them. I must always use them. That is why—but oh, I forgot"—and she clutched at the bandage—"I promised father I would not take this off till he returned to share our joy. Quick, help me on with it. He must never know."

As the youth assisted her with the fastening he longed to snatch her to him. But she had not yet had time to consider—to look him over—to decide. It was all so new to her. He would wait.

After the readjustment, she turned around and ran her finger-tips gently over his plain face. "I know you best with the eyes of my soul and they say you are beautiful. I shall always use them Carl, for how can I teach my real eyes to see otherwise?"

She paused—"Sunshine—I, yours; you, mine. That is lovely. You are teaching me to know that whether I should ever see the real sunshine or not, all that would never matter now."

"Will you tell me then, this evening, when the bandage is off for good?" was the eager question.

"Yes, I will look at you then again—but I have already seen you so I can give you my answer now."

And suddenly they awoke to the fact that the urchins below were screaming for more music.

Those Jolly Social Activities---

the kind that makes you feel the warmth and cheerfulness of the get-together parties. In the cool Autumn,—the corn roasts; in the cold winter nights,—the cosy fireside parties; in the warm spring,—preparations for graduation.

We do our utmost to help make these parties a big success by printing Programs, Announcements, Cards, Tickets, etc that are in keeping with such affairs.

AND HE IS A PREACHER

Jim Stewart telegraphs to his father, "Am sick and have no money."

His father replies via the wire, "Am well and have plenty."

EDITORIAL COMMENT

When we see the fair co-eds discarding six-buckle galoshes for pumps and silk stockings we remember that the Good Book promises protection for the shorn lamb, but we wonder, "What about the calf?"

Jakey: "How long can a person live without brains?"

Rigterink: "I don't know. How old are you?"

Prof. Bailey: "Say, who was Shylock anyway? Great Scott, Boy! You attend church every Sunday and don't know who Shylock was? Go read your Bible."

Co-ed: "I believe I have danced with you before, haven't I?"

Pop Harder: "I dunno. If you have, why don't you do it now?"

Elmer Littell: (facetiously) "This steak is like a day in June, Al, very rare."

Al van Zoeren: "Yes, and your bills are like March weather, always unsettled."

TEAM WORK

The greatest difficulty of the new staff is to get organized and started right—here's where Pontiac helps. The advice given by the experts in their Annual Service Department; their Suggestion and Instruction Book; the personal calls of their representatives—these are factors which assure success. These are not vague promises, but actual facts—facts that you can check up on—facts that are substantiated by schools with whom we have worked.

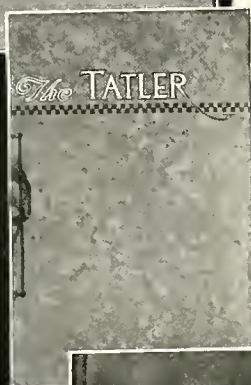

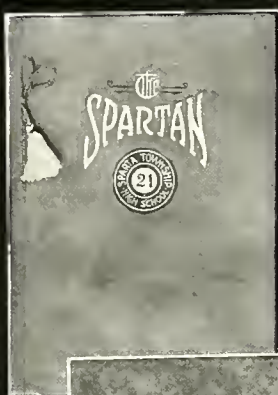

Back of all this stands the Pontiac Organization, with complete facilities for the production of high-grade Photography, Art, Engraving and Electrotyping—an organization comprised of the best workmen it is possible to get together in any plant, modern equipment and production methods which are second to none. And, remember please, that you get this service, this quality and this workmanship at just as favorable prices as you will pay for inferior workmanship and no real constructive service.

Pontiac's quality and dependable service have won for us a list of clients who appreciate the value of having the best that can be secured in engraving. You will make no mistake if you place your work with the house of Pontiac as we want your business on merit alone.
